Welcome to Kells

Welcome to the Heritage Town of Kells, centre of an area in the Boyne Valley rich in archaeological, monastic and natural heritage.

Kells is where St. Columcille built his monastery circa 554 A.D. and where later the Book of Kells was completed in the 9th century.

The most enjoyable way to experience Kells' monastic past is by following the Kells Heritage Trail and retracing the path of the monks on their way to the former monastery's physical and spiritual focal point.

Here you can also find Tailteann (Teltown), where for thousands of years games were held by the High Kings of Tara, which many believe formed the template of the ancient Olympic Games.

There are also many other activities for all the family to enjoy – golf, fishing, horse riding, adventure parks, gardens, walks, award winning restaurants and evening entertainment.

We recommend you take a few days to enjoy the warm céad míle fáilte welcome and the rich history and archaeology of this unique area.

The Book of Kells

Acknowledgement to: The Board of Trinity College Dublin

Kells' Greatest Treasure

The Book of Kells is the crowning glory of the Celtic illuminated manuscript art form, and one of the most important early mediaeval treasures of Western Europe.

- It is an illuminated gospel book in the elaborately ornate Hiberno-Saxon style
- It contains the full text of the 4 gospels of the Christian Bible in Latin.
- Vellum, or treated calf skin, was used to create the Book of Kells
- Where Created: The Book of Kells may have been composed entirely in Kells or begun at Iona, Scotland, and then completed in Kells.
- Colours: Many rare and expensive dyes were used, some imported from the Mediterranean area.
- How it got to Trinity College: The book of Kells was sent to Dublin for safe keeping by Charles Lambert in 1653. It was donated to Trinity College by Henry Jones in 1661.
- Where to see a copy in Kells – You can view a facsimile copy in the Tourist Office, the Church of St. Columba on the Monastic Site the Church of St. Columcille in Headfort Place, or in the Headfort Arms Hotel.

DID YOU KNOW?

The book of Kells was originally written on about 185 calf skins. The monks kept a herd of as many as 1,200 cattle which provided food and milk for the monastery.

DID YOU KNOW?

In 1007 the Book of Kells was stolen and found some months later "under a sod" without its jewel encrusted cover and with some of its pages missing.

You can also purchase The Book of Kells CD ROM online – www.thebookofkells.com.

Temptation of Christ

DID YOU KNOW?

Interestingly, in the Book of Kells (Temptation of Christ) there appears a picture of a building very similar to St. Columcille's House.

DID YOU KNOW?

Columcille and Columba are the same person.

Kells Monastic Past

Kells GPS: 53° 43' 36.48" N -6° 52' 24.98" W

Diarmuid Mac Caroll, High King of Tara is said to have granted the "dun of Ceanannus" to St. Columcille in the 6th Century to establish a monastery. In 804 the Columban community on the island of Iona moved back to Kells to escape the Norse raiding parties.

The present Church was built in 1778 and renovated in 1965 and the interior re-decorated. Visitors are always welcome to attend any Services in the Church and Christians of all denominations are invited to receive the Sacrament of Holy Communion.

Round Tower

Built in the 10th century, this cloignteach (bell tower), was used as a lookout tower and place of refuge during attacks.

The tower is 90 feet high from the original street level. Access to the upper floors was by way of ladders. Each floor has one window.

The round tower has 5 top windows instead of the usual 4. These overlook the five ancient roads leading into Kells and correspond to the five medieval town gates.

High Crosses

The collection of high crosses in Kells is the most important in Ireland. There are 3 High Crosses and a cross base on the Monastic Site. The biblical scenes depicted on the crosses were used for religious instruction and may have been painted.

St. Columcille's House

Dating from the 10th century, this stone oratory may have been built to house the relics of St. Columcille. The roof is barrel vaulted with 3 small chambers in the roof space.

The existence of an underground passage from St. Columcille's House to St. Columba's church is mentioned in the Annals of the Four Masters and in the 17th century Down Survey. Local tradition supports the existence of such a passage.

Kells Historic Trail

1. The Old Courthouse

The courthouse, built in 1801, was designed by the prominent Irish architect Francis Johnston who also designed the General Post Office and Nelson's Pillar in Dublin, Townley Hall, County Louth and the front entrance to Slane Castle.

Old Courthouse

2. Market Cross

The famous 9th century Market Cross, the "Cross of the Gate" was originally located at the Eastern Gate of the monastery. It signified that a fugitive could claim sanctuary once inside the boundary of the monastic area. It currently stands outside the old Courthouse. Damage to the cross is attributed to the 17th century army of Oliver Cromwell. Local belief has it that the cross was also used for hanging Croppies after the 1798 rebellion. (The Irish rebels of 1798 were referred to as Croppies, or Croppie Boys, because of their agrarian roots, or for their fashion of cutting or cropping their hair short in the then new revolutionary French fashion).

3. St. John's Cemetery

Here you will find the ruins of the Kells priory of the Hospitallers of Saint John of Jerusalem (founded in Italy in 1113 to protect pilgrims on the way to Jerusalem). The priory was founded by Walter De Lacy, son of Hugh De Lacy (first Norman lord of Meath) in 1199. Of interest in the graveyard is a medieval grave slab depicting a lady wearing a linen wimple and carrying a "tau" stick in her right hand, known locally as "the Abbess".

4. Kells Town Hall

Kells Town Hall was originally designed as a bank in 1853 by William Caldebeck and became a town hall in 1974.

Currently here you can view a facsimile copy of both the Book of Kells and the Kells' Crosier (c. 9th-11th century).

5. Parnell Garden

The sculpture “Angel of the Past” is by a local artist – from a sycamore tree which stood here when Charles Stewart Parnell addressed the people of Kells about land rights for Irish tenants.

6. Oliver Usher’s Auction Rooms

A converted brewery where Ireland’s first lager, Regal, (“Lager” backwards) was brewed in the 1930s, now rebranded as Harp.

7. Monastic Site

Kells contains a round tower and high crosses which all form part of its monastic past.

8. St. Columcille’s House

This is a stone oratory dating from the 10th century located in the centre of Kells.

9. Churchyard Wall

This wall marks the boundary of the original monastery and was rebuilt in 1714.

10. Bective Square

Here stands a Bronze Sculpture by a local artist of an oak tree depicting St. Columcille’s love of the oak tree.

11. Presbyterian Church

One of the two Presbyterian churches in Meath, this was built in 1871 on lands donated by Lord Headfort. Most members then were Scottish families working on the Headfort Estate. Sunday worship now takes place at 10:00 – and everyone is welcome.

12. St. Columcille's Well

A patron day is held annually on the eve of St. Columcille's Feast Day, June 9th. Why not sit and enjoy a quiet moment. Throw a coin in the well and make a wish.

13. Spire of Lloyd

This inland lighthouse was designed by Henry Aaron Baker (designer of the King's Inn, Dublin) for the First Earl of Bective in memory of his father Sir Thomas Taylor in 1791.

At 30m high, one can see magnificent views of the surrounding countryside as far as the Mourne Mountains in County Down, Northern Ireland on a clear day. The Spire was used to view horse racing and the hunt in the 19th century.

The spire stands on the site of an iron age ring fort. The community park (The People's Park) includes the "Paupers Graveyard", in which many, many victims of the mid-19th century famine lie buried.

Spire of Lloyd

14. Kells Victorian Era Water works

Kells Victorian era waterworks (1897), supplied water to the town and was recently restored by local volunteers and re-opened in 2009, winning many awards since then. It is the only hydro-powered pumping station in Meath.

15. Headfort House & Bridge (5 minutes drive)

Thomas Taylor, a surveyor from Sussex, came to Ireland as an assistant to Sir William Petty to draw up the Down Survey. He purchased extensive lands around Kells. In the 1760s his successors commissioned the design of Headfort House by the architect George Semple. Headfort House contains the only intact Robert Adams interiors in Ireland, which are currently being restored under the aegis of the World Monuments Fund. Groups can be shown around by prior arrangement.

Tailteann (Teltown) Blackwater River Drive & Walk

2.5 miles (4 kilometres) / 1.5 hours / Easy Terrain

GPS: 53° 40' 57.91" -6° 56' 46.77"

Drive to Donaghpatrick Church, Gibbstown where according to tradition, St. Patrick performed his first formal baptism after lighting the Pascal fire in Slane.

Across the road is Rath Airthir (Eastern Fort) an impressive trivallate ring fort incorporating a mound, possibly a Norman Motte.

Drive to Tailteann House (Teltown House) and start your walk at the "Mollies" on your right up the drive – an ancient cobbled path that leads up to the old graveyard where you will find rock art dating from about 2000BC, as well as the base of a cross and ruins of an old monastery.

Then walk along the banks of the Blackwater River round to the back of Martry Mill, still a functioning flour mill.

DID YOU KNOW?

Aonach Tailteann ancient games that predate the Olympics were held for thousands of years in Ireland. Legend has it that they were first initiated as funereal games by Lugh of the Longarm on the death of his foster mother Tailtiu.

The games stopped with the last High King of Ireland, Ruaidrí Ua Conchobair, with the coming of the Normans to Meath in the late 1100s.

The Kells Anglers Association was established in 1893 and own the fishing rights of circa 14 miles of the Blackwater River from its source at Lough Ramor to Kells. A medium size river it has some of the premier Wild Brown Trout fishing in Ireland. It has a wonderful stock of trout from ½lb to 1½lb, with trout caught each year between 2–5lb. In 2004 a record trout of 10lb was caught on dryfly.

From 1st March to 30th September trout can be caught on Wetfly, Dryfly, Nymph and Streamer. Each year, the Association hold a number of Junior competitions and fly fishing lessons. Parents are welcome to help with the barbecue while the children are supervised catching a number of fish species, including, Trout, Perch, Roach and Bream.

The river has a good run of Atlantic Salmon. The association has developed a number of spawning streams for both trout and salmon, which has dramatically increased the number of rod caught salmon. The Borora, a tributary of the Blackwater, holds a huge stock of small and medium size trout. It has an abundance of fly life associated with limestone rivers.

We are also blessed with more than 100 lakes within 1 hour from Kells. All hold excellent stocks of coarse fish, including Perch, Roach, Rudd, Tench, Bream and Pike to 20 and 30lb+. Some lakes are trout fisheries and are controlled by angling clubs and hold trout from 1lb to 5lb with some reaching double figures.

All in all, the Kells Blackwater and the surrounding area is a true mecca for fishing, from the complete beginner to the expert angler.
